

Our newly expanded Computational Biophysical Chemistry program presents an immediate need for qualified Ph.D. Students in our Computational Chemistry research groups. A background that includes, physical chemistry, biochemistry, calculus, and some experience with computing is ideal, but all applicants will be considered.